Legion Band Wins State Parade Award

The Salem Legion Band won the first place trophy in the senior parade contest at the 42nd Annual Ohio American Legion convention Sunday in Columbus.

The Salem unit, under marching band director Tom Williams, included 45 playing members, four majorettes and a color guard.

The band marched in the Forty and Eight Parade Saturday, but did not participate in the competition for the state band championship because it could not meet the requirement that 70 per cent of the members be Legionnaires.

The Gailion Legion Band, which had no competition, was declared state champions by the executive committee.

Chester M. Brautigam, a former director of the Salem band, judged the color guards, drill team inspections, bands' music and the general effect of the drum and bugle corps in the Saturday contests.

Mr. Brautigam was elected to his fourth term as state commander of the All-American Drum and Bugle Corps and Band Association, which also met in Columbus yesterday. Members of the association, which promotes various uniformed organizations across the nation, served as judges for the Legion contests.

State Legion officers were elected following the parade Sunday.

Alec J. Blair of Jackson moved up from first vice-commander to commander of the organization, and Chester F. Stellar of Creston was named first vice commander, both without opposition.

Stuart Luginbuhl of Cincinnati became second vice commander, and Wayne G. Smith of Cleveland was elected treasurer.

The 10th Legion District in eastern Ohio won the special veterans service award and the Canfield Junior Band won the first place trophy in the junior group of the parade contest.

Majorettes for the Salem band were Caroline Lewis Sousa, head majorette; Carol Debnar, Helen Dora Copachia Schneider and Martha Daugherty.

Cleveland Man Hurt In Motorcycle Event

Herbert Lawson, 29, of Cleveland is recuperating in Central Clinic from injuries suffered Sunday in a mishap at the Quaker City Timing Association's track on Rt. 165, north of Salem.

Lawson was competing in a motorcycle event when the accident occurred. He suffered multiple contusions and abrasions of the shoulders and legs and possible spinal injuries.

Witnesses and track authorities said Lawson was fortunate in that he wore the leather jacket and trousers normally worn as part of the safety equipment, or his injuries might have been worse.

Civil Rights Stand Means GOP Fight

CONVENTION HALL, Chicago (AP) — A roaring all-night fight over the party stand on civil rights tossed a shower of fireworks into the opening today of the Republican convention. It had once looked like a placid gathering for nomination of Richard M. Nixon for president.

As the party faithful trooped into this big hall, close by the

Rt. 7 Accident Fatal to Driver

Youngstown Man's Auto Rams House

A 24-year-old Youngstown man, Charles Zimmerman of Rayon Ave., became Mahoning County's 24th traffic fatality of the year early Sunday morning when his car rammed a house on Rt. 7, two tenths of a mile south of North Lima.

State highway patrolmen at Canfield said Zimmerman was pronounced dead on arrival at South Side Hospital with undetermined injuries after his car hit the home of Burdette McGinnis. McGinnis, his wife and their two children were asleep in the house at the time of the accident but were not hurt.

A passenger in Zimmerman's car, George Haring of Dredan St., in Youngstown, was treated at South Side Hospital for cuts of the left arm.

Patrolmen said Zimmerman was heading south on Rt. 7 at 3:10 a.m. when he apparently lost control near a curve in the highway. His car left the west side of the road, struck a tree, then crossed the McGinnis lot, striking McGinnis' car parked in his driveway and then hit the house.

There is no estimate yet on the damage to the house.

Ike Says GOP Platform Is 'Pretty Good'

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Eisenhower thinks the national defense plank recommended by the Republican platform committee is pretty good, the summer White House said today.

And that clearly lined the President up against New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. Rockefeller has called the plank inadequate and says it "does not face up realistically to the dangers that threaten the nation."

The plank the platform committee recommended in Chicago, on the eve of the opening of the GOP national convention, praised Eisenhower's conduct of national defense and said it would be continued on a no-price-ceiling basis.

Rockefeller has called for a 3½ billion-dollar increase in defense spending this fiscal year. He and Vice President Richard M. Nixon, sure bet for the Republican presidential nomination, agreed over the weekend that there is need for an increase in military spending. But on that occasion they mentioned no specific figure.

Eisenhower for months has taken the position that defense spending is adequate.

The White House again today declined comment on the defense views of Rockefeller, who has indicated his big New York delegation may lead a convention floor fight when the platform comes up for a vote Wednesday.

Hagerty also refused again to

DiSalle to Appoint Successor to Phillips

The vacancy created on the Seventh District Court of Appeals by the death of Judge Elmer T. Phillips of Youngstown will be filled by an appointment by Gov. Michael V. DiSalle.

The interim appointee will serve until the November election. Candidates to be placed on the ballot will be selected by the Republican Central Committee of the 13 counties in the district. They must be filed with the Boards of Election by Aug. 25.

The two remaining judges, Judge John L. Donahue and Judge Lynn B. Griffith, both are Democrats. Judge Phillips was Republican. He died Friday of a heart ailment at Youngstown North Side Hospital.

stockyards, it was hard to spot any of the 103 members of the platform-writing committee.

Many of them had scrapped till dawn in a battle that saw moderate tone down, at least slightly, the liberal GOP glow emanating from the weekend Nixon-Rockefeller pronouncement of views.

The exact wording of the civil rights plank that came out of this battle was kept secret for the moment. But the word to newsmen was that it contained a mixture of moderate and liberal proposals.

Both sides talked of a possible floor battle Wednesday when the committee's work will be submitted to the convention.

Nixon told an airport news conference in the capital that "I certainly will" support a floor fight for a strong civil rights plank if necessary.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York also was prepared to battle on the convention floor for his ideas.

Today's forenoon convention session was strictly a routine affair, devoted to welcoming addresses and preliminary organization.

Yet it was an occasion also for getting off some initial shots at the common enemy — the Democrats.

Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, national chairman, hooted at the promises he said had been made to everybody in the Democratic platform. To carry them out, he declared, would add 15 to 20 billion dollars a year to government costs.

Morton said the Republicans would adopt "a realistic, honest platform that we can and will fulfill."

The Kentucky senator is one of those figuring high in speculation about a possible vice-presidential nominee.

But the betting favorite for the No. 2 spot was, at the moment, Henry Cabot Lodge, ambassador to the United Nations.

Nixon will choose the vice-presidential nominee, as is traditional. A his meeting with reporters in Washington, he declined to discuss his choice for the spot except to say it will be a man who shares his views and one who would be qualified for the presidency if it should be necessary for him to take over that office.

Rockefeller probably would not let his name go before the convention as a presidential nominee.

But Rockefeller remained an enigma, with his position largely incomprehensible to the average delegate moving in the make-believe world of tooting bands and shouting cohorts that precedes the usually dull convention routine.

From his subterranean position as a non-candidate for either place on the ticket, Rockefeller threatened to shoot off about the only missile that might enliven the prosaic proceedings.

Although he wouldn't say it in as many words, the New York governor's complaint was directed at the heart of the Eisenhower administration's defense program.

The convention platform committee adopted language saying the Republicans have provided and will continue to provide "the defenses we need to protect our freedom." The plank promised efforts to improve defense and said "there is no price ceiling on national defense."

Rep. Glenard Lipscomb of California, chairman of the subcommittee which drafted the plank, said it was completed before Nixon and Rockefeller agreed on a statement of principles Friday night, and was not changed later.

This obviously wasn't enough

Pre-Convention Drags for Delegates

Nixon Favored As Buckeyes Join Rally

CHICAGO (AP) — Ohio's 56-vote delegation moved into the Republican national convention today, confident of Richard M. Nixon's nomination and eventual election as president.

The Buckeye contingent, under the chairmanship of former Sen. John W. Bricker, attended the opening session of the convention after the first open-to-the-press caucus in the memory of even the oldest Ohio political observer.

So far as the Ohio delegation goes, the preliminaries of the convention have been devoid of excitement, sweat or smoke-filled rooms. The former has been because of the lack of a burning issue or contest. The latter two have been because the headquarters hotel—the Conrad-Hilton—is air conditioned.

Sen. Robert Taft Jr. of Cincinnati, son of the late "Mr. Republican," emerged from meetings

Rocky Ready to Fight for Plank

Sides with Nixon But Withholds Votes

CHICAGO (AP) — New York's big delegation, under the firm control of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, was ready today to spearhead a convention floor fight for the platform he worked out with Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Opposition developed in the platform committee to some parts of the Nixon-Rockefeller agreement.

While siding with Nixon in the platform fight, Rockefeller still was unwilling to release the New York delegates to endorse the vice president as the Republican presidential nominee.

The governor postponed until a meeting of the delegation Tuesday afternoon any decision on a presidential nominee.

The convention will select its nominee Wednesday night. Nixon, the only declared candidate, is considered assured of the assignment.

Rockefeller has continued to hold himself open to a draft, even while conceding that his chances of getting one are almost nonexistent.

His plans to meet today with the Montana, Wyoming and New Mexico delegations, and Tuesday with Illinois, helped keep alive speculation the New York governor still has hopes of winning the nomination.

A Rockefeller aide said his meetings with the other states would involve only discussions on the platform.

Press secretary Robert McManus, said the various delegations had invited Rockefeller to appear and that he had not sought the meetings.

Local Firm Moving Into Bigger Building

Miller-Holzwarth Inc., located at 110 W. State St. for the last five years, is moving into new quarters at 485 W. State St., the old Lincoln-Mercury garage which has been enlarged.

William E. Miller, president of the firm, stated that purpose of the move is to acquire additional manufacturing space for the growing industry. He explained that the new quarters will give his company 11,000 square feet of floor space. The present building has 6,000 square feet.

Miller-Holzwarth is the manufacturer of specialized photographic equipment and employs on the average of 30 persons, Miller said. He said business is currently "good" and will apparently continue that way in the near future.

Republicans Adopt Civil Rights Plank

CHICAGO (AP) — The Republican National Convention opening today will not receive it formally until Wednesday night, when the full platform comes up for action.

The composite was worked out at a closed-door session that ground on until 6:40 a.m. (CDT). At one point the committee rejected 52-32 a motion that it adjourn for the night.

The politically touchy civil rights problem was tossed to the full committee after a drafting subcommittee voted 8-7 for a plank more moderate than that urged by New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and supported by Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Through the night the committee battled over a strong vs. a liberal plank, and backers of both sides threatened a floor fight if they lost.

It tabled the stronger plank but went on to accept some liberal-sponsored amendments to the more moderate version. No details of either original proposal were made public.

Rep. Melvin Laird of Wisconsin said the final product, although based on the moderates' proposals, included about half of the liberal-sponsored provisions.

Chairman Charles H. Percy said all votes were by voice, and no tally was taken.

Defeat of the liberals' offering followed claims by its supporters that many of their members had left the meeting while moderate forces remained in full strength.

Rockefeller himself had opposed earlier not only the civil rights plank chosen by the subcommittee but also the national defense pronouncement adopted by the full committee.

"I will fight right here in Chicago," if necessary, he said, to put across his views.

The platform group obviously charted a policy course that missed by a wide margin the terms set out in a compromise worked out late last week by Rockefeller and Nixon.

It appeared the platform group

Lodge Claims Red Fighter 'Pushed' RB47

Rips Soviet Charges Aircraft Violated U.S.S.R. Air Space

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —The United States declared today it has proof that Soviet fighters deliberately pushed a U. S. RB47 off its course and shot it down over international waters.

In a dramatic speech to the U. N. Security Council, U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said "this astonishing and criminal act is established beyond doubt by the evidence of our scientific devices."

Lodge produced charts to demonstrate his points, and denounced the Soviet Union for "flagrant disregard for the standards of international conduct."

He called the Soviet charges that the plane violated U.S.S.R. air space last July 1 a "complete fabrication" which must be dismissed as a poor attempt to cloak a wanton attack on a plane over international waters.

Lodge said he would introduce a resolution asking that the Council call for an impartial investigation of the entire incident, or a judgment on the case by the International Court of Justice.

"What actually happened was this: Before it (the plane) reached the point more than 50 miles north of Svatoy Nos, at which it was scheduled to turn northeast, a Soviet fighter pressed in from the seaward side and tried to force the plane off its course and into Soviet territory," Lodge said.

"The Soviet fighter was successful in forcing our plane off its course and in delaying its planned turn to the northeast. It was not successful in forcing the plane into Soviet airspace. It caused our plane to make a detour. That detour is shown by the green line (on the chart.) The prescribed course is shown by the black line."

"This establishing and criminal fact is established beyond doubt by the evidence of our scientific devices which followed the RB47 through all the events I have described."

Somebody, Lodge said, lied about the incident.

"Only one conclusion can be drawn from this. The Soviet fighter was trying to make the RB47 fly southward over Soviet territory. There it could have been shot down on land. This attempt failed," Lodge said.

"Now we wonder why the Soviets have presented so many distortions about this. Perhaps the Soviet air force was reluctant to admit to Chairman Khrushchev that he aircraft could not be shot down over Soviet air space—for the good reason that it was not there—and therefore did not inform him of the facts."

"Perhaps they did not tell him that they had to go 200 miles from Cape Svatoy Nos to follow the RB47. Perhaps Chairman Khrush-

Kennedy Faces Bitter Row Among Dems
HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy meets today with Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City to discuss presidential campaign strategy and a bitter row among New York Democratic factions.
As the party's presidential nominee, Kennedy has voiced deep concern lest factional feuds upset applecart in his bid for New York's 45 electoral college votes, the nation's biggest block.
The conference ranked high in importance for this busy week in which Kennedy seeks to clear decks for the arrival of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, the vice presidential nominee.
Through press secretary Pierre Salinger, Kennedy announced Sunday that Johnson will fly to Hyannis Port Aug. 1 or 2 to discuss plans for the campaign, and for the Congress session opening Aug. 8.
The two had been out of touch for several days while Johnson was on vacation in Mexico. Salinger said they talked at length by telephone Sunday and that Johnson "gave his support" to campaign plans Kennedy already has made from his summer home.
Salinger said the week ahead will be "active—more a work week than a rest week."

Four Road Mishaps Probed by Patrol
Four minor traffic accidents were investigated Sunday on county highways by Lisbon Post state highway patrolmen.
Charged with unsafe operation after his car left Rt. 538, hit a pole and a fence was Carol Crawford, Jr., 28, of Rogers. Patrolmen said Crawford was eastbound about two-tenths of a mile east of Rt. 7 when the mishap occurred. Time of the accident was 2:50 a.m.
At 10:55 a.m., a car driven by Kenneth Seogger, 16, of Aliquippa, Pa., failed to make a curve on Maple Alley at Guilford Lake, ran into a ditch and rolled over.
Three cars received minor damages at 8:05 p.m., patrolmen said, when Anna Mae McGlaughlin, 36, of 59 W. Salem St., Columbiana, attempted to shift gears while following a slow moving truck on Alternate Rt. 14, about seven-tenths of a mile east of Salem. Patrolmen said she inadvertently pushed the reverse button, sending her car into one driven by Ruth Becknell, 60, of 1163 E. 10th St., which was pushed into a third car operated by Denzil Vangilder, 31, of Cleveland.
Shortly after noon, a car driven

Kennedy Faces Bitter Row Among Dems
HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy meets today with Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City to discuss presidential campaign strategy and a bitter row among New York Democratic factions.
As the party's presidential nominee, Kennedy has voiced deep concern lest factional feuds upset applecart in his bid for New York's 45 electoral college votes, the nation's biggest block.
The conference ranked high in importance for this busy week in which Kennedy seeks to clear decks for the arrival of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, the vice presidential nominee.
Through press secretary Pierre Salinger, Kennedy announced Sunday that Johnson will fly to Hyannis Port Aug. 1 or 2 to discuss plans for the campaign, and for the Congress session opening Aug. 8.
The two had been out of touch for several days while Johnson was on vacation in Mexico. Salinger said they talked at length by telephone Sunday and that Johnson "gave his support" to campaign plans Kennedy already has made from his summer home.
Salinger said the week ahead will be "active—more a work week than a rest week."

Four Road Mishaps Probed by Patrol
Four minor traffic accidents were investigated Sunday on county highways by Lisbon Post state highway patrolmen.
Charged with unsafe operation after his car left Rt. 538, hit a pole and a fence was Carol Crawford, Jr., 28, of Rogers. Patrolmen said Crawford was eastbound about two-tenths of a mile east of Rt. 7 when the mishap occurred. Time of the accident was 2:50 a.m.
At 10:55 a.m., a car driven by Kenneth Seogger, 16, of Aliquippa, Pa., failed to make a curve on Maple Alley at Guilford Lake, ran into a ditch and rolled over.
Three cars received minor damages at 8:05 p.m., patrolmen said, when Anna Mae McGlaughlin, 36, of 59 W. Salem St., Columbiana, attempted to shift gears while following a slow moving truck on Alternate Rt. 14, about seven-tenths of a mile east of Salem. Patrolmen said she inadvertently pushed the reverse button, sending her car into one driven by Ruth Becknell, 60, of 1163 E. 10th St., which was pushed into a third car operated by Denzil Vangilder, 31, of Cleveland.
Shortly after noon, a car driven

Look Ahead to Future Needs When Planning Piping System

Planning the plumbing system for a new house?

It pays to look ahead to anticipate possible future requirements. With the help of your plumbing contractor, the plumbing system for your new house can be planned so that additions and changes can be made easily and with minimum interference with family routine in the future.

The first step in looking ahead in planning your plumbing system is to have piping installed that will not only serve your present needs but will be adequate for future requirements, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

Take the service line from the street main to your house, for instance. It will cost only a little more to make this an inch in diameter instead of three-fourths of an inch. In fact, it may be desirable to use a pipe that is larger.

At any rate, by using the next size of pipe, the capacity of the line and, indeed, the entire house piping system will be greatly increased. By doing this, you will be making a wise investment in the future. You will be assured that your water supply will be adequate for any future expansion you might wish to put into effect as for instance, air conditioning, an automatic washer, an additional bathroom, or water supply for the garage.

The home builder who thinks ahead will also plan for an extra bathroom by having the rough piping for this additional convenience feature installed when the house is built. By having the piping roughed in when the house is under construction, the cost will be only a fraction of what it would be later.

In the same way the future installation of an automatic dishwasher and a food waste disposer should be anticipated by having the rough piping connections for the supply piping and the waste piping installed when the house is being built.

Here's The Answer

QUESTION: I plan to do some painting soon. This time I intend to buy good brushes and take care of them properly, which I haven't done in the past. Should a new brush get a special treatment?

ANSWER: Try to buy a new brush at least a day before you use it. When you get it home, swirl the handle bruskiy between your hands for several minutes, then rub one hand back and forth across the bristles several additional minutes. Wrap the brush in heavy paper (not paper with print on it).

then suspend it in raw linseed oil for at least 24 hours. Remove the paper and squeeze out the oil by rubbing the flat side of the bristles against the edge of a board or across a smooth wire. Rinse the brush thoroughly in turpentine and allow to dry. The linseed oil bath is not necessary if the bristles are made of nylon.

QUESTION: I would like to apply acoustical tiles to the ceiling of my den. But I do not want to fool around with pitting up-furring strips. I understand that some tiles can be cemented directly to the plaster ceiling. Is this practical? That is, will the cement hold indefinitely.

ANSWER: Have no worries on that score. The type of cement now available for putting up ceiling tiles will not fail you. If the tiles are installed according to directions, they should last the life of the house.

QUESTION: The sidewalk in front of our house has several very narrow cracks. I read in a book on home repair that when repairing small cracks in the walk, grout may be used, but it doesn't say what grout is or how to mix it. Can you help me?

ANSWER: Grout is a term used to designate a portland cement mixture which is very watery. Generally, such a mixture contains nothing except the cement and water; no sand and no gravel. Merely mix the cement and the water until the mixture is similar to molasses. The grout is then smoothed into the cracks, which should be sprinkled with water a couple of times a day for three or four days. This will work only with hairline cracks where a sand or concrete mix can not be used effectively. For a better and more permanent repair, the cracks should be enlarged with a cold chisel and a hammer — and the openings filled with a mixture of one part of portland cement to 2½ parts of clean sand, with enough water to make the mixture workable but not loose.

QUESTION: I am considering painting the outside of our wooden house with one of the latex emulsion paints. Since I expect to apply two coats, I would like to know how much time to allow between coats.

ANSWER: You'll get the answer to this question when you buy the paint and read the instructions on the label. However, this type of paint usually requires less drying time than others and you will probably find that you can apply the second coat in two hours or less.

This and That Of Interest to The Home Owner

From various sources come these bits of information of interest to the home owner:

When somebody really is interested in the house you have to sell, he begins to ask questions about the mortgage, taxes, etc. It's a good idea, therefore, to keep a written record of all information about the house so that it's handy when the questions begin.

No One Wants Throttlebottom

Speculation about Nelson Rockefeller's role in the Republican party is rife directly to Lyndon Johnson's role in the Democratic party — and to the convention events that made Johnson the party's candidate for vice president. He was chosen because he was strong.

The Texas did not give up his job as majority leader of the Senate for a chance to be a Throttlebottom if John Kennedy became president. Sen. Johnson is a leader in politics and expects to keep on being a leader, both as his party's candidate for vice president or as vice president of the United States if the Johnson-Kennedy team wins.

This would be equally true of Gov. Rockefeller if he ran for vice president.

He would not give up the governorship of New York to be a Throttlebottom for Richard Nixon. He is strong in his own right. He would be expected to retain his individuality if he ran and if he served.

Whether he or Ambassador Lodge, or Sen. Morton or someone else runs with the Republican presidential candidate, the second man on the Republican ticket will be expected to match the strong individuality of Sen. Johnson as second man on the Democratic ticket.

THIS IS the measurement of the change that has transformed the vice presidency since Dwight Eisenhower made it clear in 1953 that he expected his young vice president to bear a full load of executive responsibility. The change is still going on.

Vice presidents from now on will be responsible not only for bearing their full share of administration but for creating a full share of ideas in campaigns.

They will not be mouthpieces for heads of tickets — puppet orators. They will not be bushbeaters responsible for getting out votes — peripatetic ward-healers. They will not be geographic representatives to balance the ticket. And they will not be cast into oblivion if they lose.

How many Democrats can recall the name of the man who ran for vice president on the ticket with Adlai Stevenson in 1956? In 1952? Estes Kefauver and John Sparkman have all but disappeared from the national scene. Who remembers now when John Bricker and Charles McNary were vice presidential candidates?

THESE MEN, too, were strong individuals. The difference was that they were expected to subdue their individuality when they were given vice presidential nominations. That is what has changed.

This year, the vice presidency was the lively question of the Democratic convention and will be the lively question of the Republican convention — and not entirely because the presidential nominations had been predetermined.

The new personal stature of Vice President Nixon has given the vice presidency new status — so much so that in the near future it may become the practice to choose for vice president the party figure most likely to be the party's next choice for president, the same practice already followed widely in business and private organizations.

Dissent Is Everybody's Privilege

There is a standard blast among politicians that goes like this:

"Mister X," of course, entitled to his opinion. But . . .

The explanation then runs on for a few hundred well-chosen words. It always claims Mister X had a hole in his head because his opinion makes no sense, absolutely no sense whatsoever.

It must be done this way, under the rule that anyone in politics who tries to be fair gets mashed by the ruthless opposition. Yet, there are times when an ordinary voter could wish that just once an ordinary voter would level with his constituents. Like this—

"Mister X is entitled to his opinion. Everybody is, thank God, because Mister X has done such a bang-up job of thinking this through that I have sent him a long letter praising him for being wide awake and extra sharp in the head.

"Naturally, this will cause me to be chewed over thoroughly by critics in my own party who think it's suicide for a politician to admit he might not have had all the answers when he claimed to have them. The opposition will snort and chortle. That doesn't worry me. I know I don't have all the answers.

"I have been wrong about a lot of things up to now, and I am running true to form. But there's one thing I can say for myself, if you will permit me. I never give up. I keep looking for better answers. I believe in the theory that everything can be improved if we give it a chance.

"This, then, in my way of putting on the record my agreement with Mister X and my thanks to him. I wish I had thought of his idea first. As it is, I'm glad he thought of it in the remote chance he was trying to embarrass me by springing it at this time. I see no reason for either of us to be embarrassed. The only embarrassing thing would be if neither of us had thought of it.

"They say two heads are better than one. That's government of the people. Everybody gets into the act. We can have the benefit of all opinions. In this instance, Mister X had a better opinion than mine. In other instances, I have felt free to say he had a hole in his head. He doesn't know all the answers, either. But he rang the bell this time.

As we said before, an ordinary voter wishes politicians would level. It would make their "Yes, but . . ." so much more convincing. Even the hottest of the hotshots must be wrong sometimes.

Once Over

Shudda Haddim, famed $2 bettor and race char' follower sizes up presidential race as follows:

Jackie K. — Boston Farms entry; speedy but can go the route. The charts show sensational performances from the earliest races. The initial trials over Bay State tracks displayed winning performance and was the winner in the upset over Cabot Lodge's Boy. He went on to victories in the Potomac Handicap, Video Derby and Pompadour Futurity. He is sound, sturdy and dependable under all weights and triumphed in Los Angeles Weight for Age Stakes as over seasoned competitor. In last event he broke from the gate fast and was never headed, thus avoiding rough work on the turns. Now resting up at Hyannis Plantation for November Special.

Dickie N. — He has been prepped and pointed for this big one, but may suffer from the lack of competition. The record shows a photo finish against Nikita in Moscow Steeplechase, but was crowned in the South American Open. He is inclined to let leader set the pace. This one first attracted attention in Alger Hiss Pursuit Race and won the event through the sensational finish in the stretch. He has been running coupled with General Ike and had the benefit of strong campaigning. He is reported good on fast or slow track and is reported to like mud. Best effort needed.

GOV. ROCKEFELLER scorns vice presidential spot. It figures. His grandpa, John D., didn't get to the top playing second fiddle in an oil well . . . Four monkeys have been found in New York subways in the past three weeks. This puzzles us, especially since high subway fare makes it impossible to ride "for peanuts" any more.

Paul Butler has been proposed as Hollywood movie-czar. After what happened to him as movie chairman, he is qualified to be a good judge of what constitutes excessive violence in or out of pictures. Either party could be a sure winner in November if it flashed a plank promising to end singing commercials.

Miami, of all places, is the scene of a court fight against prayer or other religious touch in public schools. We would think it one area where the kids needed what little spiritual training the public schools can afford. Schools down there have opened with Lord's Prayer for generations, but a citizen group of mixed faiths would bar it, and also ban any school attention to Christmas, Easter or Hanukkah. The world is getting "curiouser and curiouser." When this writer was a kid every school session opened with prayer. Nobody blitted the Bible. Classes had Jews, Gentiles and even Buddhists, but there was never a suggestion prayers could harm them. The shape of world today would indicate that some general recognition of the Lord was a greater need than ever in history.

Fancy a fight against prayer in schools in a region where the moppets get a closeup of widespread gambling, horse racing, nightclub and casino routines, loose standards and pretty general 'anything goes' mood!

DR. JOSEPH ADELSTEIN, Pennsylvania health office official, tells a convention that the "cocktail glass is as much a symbol of business as a briefcase" and adds that under high pressure, executive have to drink hard to keep jobs or get ahead. This charge should a little too much. It just ain't so. At clubs and at home, the cocktail is welcome. But on the job or during luncheon conferences, the exec who takes more than one, is soon tabbed for a toboggan. There is no more certain way to get fired than to be known to the corporation as a lush.

"Once More Around, Then I'll Let Him Catch Me"

Inside Labor By Victor Riesel

Women, says Perle Mesta, are an asset. Why then are their talents sometimes ignored and why are they discriminated against? Victor Riesel asked this of the famed first lady of Washington's social circles. This is her reply.

By PERLE MESTA

Early this year when I was collecting material for my book, "Perle" (published by McGraw-Hill a few weeks ago) I had the privilege of interviewing many women leaders, in the political, professional, business and social worlds. In most cases this gave great impetus to my pride in American women of this era.

Since I was determined to devote pages in my book to freedom of women I went to see Alice Paul—the most dedicated crusader I have ever known despite her gentle Quaker aspect—on the status of the equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution now pending in both Houses of Congress.

Miss Paul, founder and former National Woman's Party, is conversational, charming and a woman of every shade of every opinion held by every member of Congress on the equal rights amendment. She has been engaged in campaigns for the freedom of women for 60 years or more.

I AM PROUD of the fact that I too have been in the battle for the freedom of women for more than 20 years and I now hold the post of vice chairman of the National Woman's Party, of which that sterling and indomitable Democrat from Pennsylvania, Emma Guffey Miller, is the national chairman. I am the accredited representative of the World and National Woman's Parties at the United Nations.

Most people are unaware that approximately 1,500 laws and regulations in the United States discriminate against women.

Why does the United States lag behind when other countries with brand new constitutions give women equal rights as a matter of course?

In this summer of political conventions my thoughts turn back to political conventions of other years.

Looking Backward

5 YEARS AGO — Mrs. Vernon Broomall was a guest Tuesday when the New Gaudet Methodist Church WSCS was entertained by Mrs. Ernest Ressler.

10 YEARS AGO — Russell E. Myers of Salem has been appointed grand exalted ruler of the B.P.O. Elks' Northeastern Ohio District.

25 YEARS AGO — In celebration of his sixth birthday anniversary, Richard Bryan entertained 25 of his friends at a party at the home of his uncle, D. W. Bryan.

So They Say

A lack of clarity has characterized the frequent amendments and redefinitions of the American position (on disarmament). And a lack of unity has marked all Western planning for disarmament and its negotiation.—Nelson A. Rockefeller.

To me they are always fascinating as spectacles of democracy in action not to be found at any other time or any other place in the world. I can well understand why staunch Republican Alice Longworth sometimes attends both the Republican and the Democratic conventions. She certainly adds zest to both scenes with her razor-edged quips, astounding gift of repartee and political sagacity.

No one can deny that there is an allure to the chance of mingling with the men and women playing star roles on the political stage and perhaps the tingling satisfaction of having just a tip of the finger in the making of history.

SOME PEOPLE say I am Two-Party Perle—because I was a Republican before I became a Democrat. I acknowledge the soft impeachment that I have dearly loved friends in both parties. I always give parties and go to parties at conventions. It is the best way I know to get in those telling words for candidates and issues.

There are more women officials, delegates and alternates on the roster at both political conventions this time than ever before. More women will vote in the November elections than ever before. Everyone knows that the women's vote is necessary for election.

The U.S. Census Bureau figures of July 1959 reveal that there are 55,250,000 potential women voters in this country: 3,780 more potential women voters than potential men voters. Both political parties protest that they do not have an authentic breakdown on just how many women's votes were cast for winning candidates in recent elections. Perhaps they are too scared to say.

All of us enjoy the wooing that is going on.

I do not want to betray any feminine secrets. However, I do not mind giving the political brethren some hints. They would be wise to put on their glasses to discover that women as a whole today want to participate in much more than the fluff and trivia of political gatherings. Many of them inject vibrant notes of political acumen, practical service, iron endurance and enthusiasm into campaign pictures.

Still In Business

By PETER EDSON

Government Continues Trend Toward Socialism

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Five years' effort to get the U. S. government out of business—out of competition with private enterprise, that is—has barely made a dent in the job.

This was to be one of the big programs of the Republican administration. It was going to end this trend toward socialism by having the government turn back all business-type activities that business-for-a-profit could do better and cheaper.

This was going to save the taxpayers money.

But the administration will go out with this mission only about 10 per cent accomplished.

ELMER B. STAATS, Budget Bureau's deputy director, gave the Senate Committee on Small Business a run-down on progress on this business of giving business back to business recently.

The main thing it seemed to show was that, once you start a government program, it's almost impossible to end it.

The administration started out big in January 1955, Staats reported, with a general policy statement that "The Federal Government will not start or carry on any commercial activity to provide a service or product for its own use if such product or service can be procured from private enterprise through ordinary business channels."

The first thing they had to do was to find out how many business-type activities the government had and where they all were. An inventory was completed four years ago.

IT WAS A BIG BOOK, OF ABOUT 100 pages of tables. It showed that the government had 19,333 business-type enterprises. This figure was later corrected to 18,903 because of mergers and errors.

As of July 31, 1959—a little over three years later—1,516 enterprises had actually been discontinued, which might be considered a good start. Two hundred and twenty six more were curtailed a little, but still included in the 17,387 continued.

The agencies also announced plans to discontinue another 116 and to curtail 211 more after last July 31. That would have reduced the total to 17,271.

The only trouble was that between January 1957 and July 1959 236 new business-type enterprises were started. So the total rose to 17,507, which is where it is today.

REASONS FOR HAVING to continue the 17,507 make interesting reading. National Security reasons make necessary the continuance of 216. Making of nuclear energy materials by the Atomic Energy Commission and making of liquid oxygen for Air Force missiles are examples.

Costs—the government can actually do some things cheaper than private business—are responsible for continuance of another 1333 enterprises. Facilities and services at remote government installations are examples.

But in 17,158 existing business-type activities, it was found "clearly unfeasible" for the government to let go.

The original inventory showed capital assets of the 19,000 odd enterprises to be $11.8 billion dollars. They had 258,000 civilian and over 8,000 government employees.

"FROM THE PRELIMINARY results," says Staats, "it appears that there is a compelling requirement for most of the existing governmental activities in the civilian agencies."

Department of Defense has been given until March 1961 to complete its study of what activities it might get out of.

"At this point," says Staats, "it seems most fruitful to channel our major efforts into reviewing proposed new activities."

Order and Planning?

By RAYMOND MOLEY

Of all the pious frauds in political oratory and declarations this year, the greatest have been gestures toward education, orderly government, and planning for the future. Party leaders have never brought about order or planning in the conduct of their own business. The most glaring example is the business of nominating a candidate for the presidency.

The convention method is about 130 years old. It has changed very little, except in mechanical details. Its basic weakness is unchanged.

Thoughtful people have lamented over this feeble imitation of representative government and party responsibility. Half a century ago, a distinguished Russian, M. Ostrogorsky, wrote a classic on political parties. His melancholy conclusions about the convention have been read thousands of times to students by professors of history and political science. His characterization was that the convention is a "colossal travesty of popular institutions."

The movement to reform the nominating process gave rise to presidential primaries in various states. But that, as we have just seen, has been used to compound the travesty.

By the use of large financial means and a big organization John F. Kennedy entered several primaries and, with his rivals either too busy doing their duty or short of cash, amassed a show of popular demand. This enabled him to gather a hefty number of pledged delegates.

The volume of such support culminated in a show of popular support created by polls, publicity, and public appearances. From then on, the going was excellent because of the characteristic great terror of politicians not to be caught backing a losing candidate. It would be interesting to know what the secret evaluations of the delegates were concerning the real qualifications of Sen. Kennedy as a possible president. In polls of governors, editors, members of Congress, and of Washington press representatives, Sen. Johnston rated far above Kennedy.

The defects in the nominating convention, augmented by the ill-considered primary system which all but destroyed party responsibility, were fully exploited by a candidate who, by a serious consideration of qualifications, is inferior to many other Democrats who might be entrusted with the grave responsibility of the presidency.

Henry Hazlitt, in a letter to the New York Times, has suggested one device that might help rid the minds of delegates of fear. That would be to have the balloting secret. He argues that since it is a fundamental that voters have a right to a secret ballot to remove them from fear and intimidation and to bring out their better judgment, this might, with equal justification, be applied to voting by convention delegates.

This single device would not cure all the convention's defects, but it would be a step in that direction.

This and That

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail—

One reason women outlive men seems to be that they are more germ-proof. Of 365 disease conditions, men are more susceptible to 245, women to only 120.

Most kids believe bubble gum is new. Actually it was first introduced in 1906, but it was too sticky for the children of that day. Modern bubble gum, made with a synthetic base, was developed in 1928.

Do you really dislike your job? If you do you are an exception. A recent study showed that 62 per cent of the working public felt the job would be no happier with a different boss.

What's in a name? Joe Sharp, a member of Sammy Kaye's troupe, has a brother-in-law named Jim Flat.

Queen Elizabeth of England is a lucky monarch, and here's one fact about her more women might envy than her crown—she doesn't have to diet. Two of her favorite foods are grapefruit and roast lamb.

Canine society news: The people now has passed the beagle as America's most popular purebred dog. The Chihuahua ranks third and the dachshund fourth. Who can remember when to own an alreale or a colife was a mark of distinction?

Apt definition: Arthur Murray says you can always tell a family man—He is the one whose wallet holds snapshots instead of money.

Speaking of money that tree: One more possible proof that women can handle it better than men: Some 10 million U.S. men—compared to only 4 million U.S. women—have had to hock a personal possession in a pawn shop at some time in their life to raise ready cash.

Woodman, spare that tree: Can anyone present recall when people ate incense? and cooked with gas or electricity? Americans now use 350,000 tons of charcoal a year in backyard barbecues, and the industry expects the figure soon to soar to 500,000 tons.

The good old days: In 1895 there were only four automobiles registered in this country.

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: I feel a little stupid writing in for advice. I'm not a teen-ager; I've been married and divorced, in fact.

The man I'm interested in is a captain in a very nice dining room. I'm a salad cook. His working clothes are tuxedos, so I thought at first I might have been carried away by the glamor. But that isn't it, Ann. I've seen him in an old sweater and he still looks good to me.

The trouble is I don't want to let my emotions get out of control. Your ten-age advice won't help, if you know what I mean. Do you have some advice for people in their late 20s?—SALAD COOK.

Dear Salad Cook: The directions are right on the mayonnaise jar. "KEEP COOL — BUT DON'T FREEZE."

Delicate Subject

Dear Ann: I'm the mother of a 10-year-old boy. I need some advice on what to tell this sensitive child.

His father had a nervous breakdown three weeks ago. He is now in a private mental hospital. For several months previous to his collapse he was alternately silent and then he'd go to the other extreme and shout and throw things.

When Allen would ask: "What's the matter with Daddy?" I'd tell him: "Daddy is terribly tired because he is working so hard for us."

Now that his father is gone, Allen keeps asking where he is and when he's coming home. I've told him Daddy is on a vacation because he needs the rest. I can't keep up the pretense much longer.

Please tell me how to handle this. I feel absolutely lost. — HEART.

Dear Heavy Heart: Tell Allen Daddy is no longer on vacation; that he became ill and had to go to a hospital.

Explain that Daddy loves him very much and is trying hard to get well soon so he can come home.

Children adjust to the unhappy truth far better than to the frost-covered lie. And they are capable of understanding a great deal more than we give them credit for.

When children sense that adults are hiding something, their fears and anxieties multiply. And then there is always the risk that the youngster will learn the truth from an outsider. This would shake a child's confidence and add immeasurably to his problems.

The Kid Sister

Dear Ann: I am 13. My sister who is 17 is jealous of me because I am prettier than she is. Last night my sister had a boy-girl party and Mother told me I could say hello to the guests but then I had to go to my room or spend the night with my cousins. I made it plain they couldn't drive me out of my own house so I agreed to say hello and go upstairs. Several of the best-looking fellows were very friendly to me and I could tell they wanted me to stick around — so I did. After about 40 minutes my mother called me into the kitchen and told me to go to my room.

I think this was simply rotten and I wish you'd give THEM some advice on human rights and fairness. — OBJECT OF JEALOUSY.

Dear Object: The advice is for you, a 13-year-old girl does not belong at her 17-year-old sister's boy-girl party. Your time will come. Wait.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Salem News, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mrs. Knut A. Kronstad

Miss Mary Bell of Columbiana Bride of New Castle Man

The Chapel of Friendly Bells in Youngstown was the scene of the double ring wedding Sunday evening which united in marriage Miss Mary Ella Bell and Knut Andreas Kronstad.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Bell of Columbiana. Mr. and Mrs. Haavard Kronstad of New Castle, Pa., are the parents of the bridegroom. The Rev. Mark George of the East Fairfield Methodist Church performed the candlelight ceremony. The chancel was decorated with bouquets of white gladioli and carnations, palms and seven-branch candelabra.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Bell was attired in a gown of silk organza over taffeta. Appliques of alencon lace, re-embroidered with pearls and sequins, accented the fitted bodice and were repeated in the skirt, which featured a chapel train.

Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to a chapeau of re-embroidered lace and pearls. Her white Bible was overlaid with a white orchid, stephanotis and ivy.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Diane Van Moos of East Palestine. She chose a ballerina-length gown of wedgewood blue lace over poudre blue satin, a matching veiled chapeau and white lace mitts. White carnations and blue forget-me-nots formed her bouquet.

Miss Karen Bell of Columbus was flower girl. Her white organza dress featured a wedgewood blue cummerbund, with which she wore a ribbon headpiece and carried a basket of summer flowers.

Robert T. Murphy of New Castle, Pa., was best man. The ushers were Arthur K. Bell and Ralph E. Bell of Columbiana.

White accessories and a pink and white carnation corsage complemented the navy ensemble worn by the mother of the bride. Mrs. Kronstad chose a beige ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Guests from Columbus, Hilliard, Bellefontaine, Canton, Berlin Center, Salem, Columbiana, Youngstown, and New Castle and Pittsburgh, Pa. attended the reception in Brown Union.

Silver and white wedding bells topped the three-tiered wedding cake on the bride's table. A centerpiece of pink and white carnations and ivy and white tapers completed the appointments.

The hostesses were Miss Patricia Converse, Mrs. Kimsey Bell, Mrs. Hildegard Schmittgen and Mrs. Bernard Bell. Mrs. Clyde Oaks was in charge of the guest book.

Mrs. Kronstad received a bachelor of arts and a bachelor of science in education from Youngstown University and was on the teaching staff of the Columbiana Exempted Village Schools.

The couple will reside at 256 McKim Road, New Castle, Pa., where Mr. Kronstad is employed by the Rockwell Standard Corp. He received a bachelor of science in mechanical engineering from Youngstown University.

For her wedding trip to Chautauque Lake and the New England States, the bride chose a mist gray suit with white accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell were hosts at a luncheon preceding the rehearsal Saturday evening.

The Doctor Says

By HAROLD THOMAS HYMAN, M.D.

Small Car-itis Merits Concern

In a letter to the Journal of the American Medical Assn., Dr. Jerome F. Strauss Jr. of Chicago describes two new ailments that he attributes to the increasing popularity of small automobiles.

To avoid the wrath of sports car buffs and teeny - weeny car fans I'll use phony names, although Dr. Strauss did not.

In "panther chest," the victim, usually a person taller than 5 feet 10 inches, complains of pain beneath the breastbone (sternum) and in or around the heart area (precordium).

Dr. H. T. Hyman

USUALLY THE PAIN comes on a few days after purchase of the new car. Often the complainant, who previously operated a car with automatic gear shift and power steering, now has to do with a manual shift and an arm-powered wheel.

Since examination reveals nothing more than some slight muscle tenderness and spasm in the affected area, it is often necessary to take a chest X-ray and an electrocardiogram before the middle-aged or elderly complainant especially can be assured that there is no underlying damage to ribs, lungs or heart.

In "schnellgang hip," the victim's complaints are located in the back and left hip.

HERE THE STRAIN seems to be due to the twisting movement that is required when the person of average height is faced with the problem of entering or leaving the new car and the cramped position that has to be assumed during the drive because of limited leg and head room, especially if a hat is worn.

Unless the physician is alert to this newly described recreational affliction, he is apt to think his patient is suffering from sacroiliac strain, sciatica, lumbago or even the type of "kidney trouble" that is pictured in some patent medicine ads.

MOST PATHETIC of all is the driver who suffers small car-itis in its most severe form. That is to say the combination of "panther chest" with "schnellgang hip." Here indeed is a person who merits tender public concern!

Might it not be possible for the public relations counsel of some rising (or fading) star to organize an all-night television telethon on behalf of these worthy victims of automotive progress?

Assignments for safety speeches were given to members at a recent meeting at Guilford Lake. Roll call was answered by naming a famous river.

It was announced that Linda Hrovatic and Donna Levkulich participated in the health and safety contest.

Members were told that judging of club projects will be held by the advisers anytime from now until Aug. 4.

The eight members present enjoyed a swimming party and wienner roast after the meeting.

BRING FIRE TO FIGHTERS

The fire fighters waited while a locomotive pushed the box car the few hundred feet into the city limits and then extinguished the blaze.

PUNTA GORDA, Fla. (AP) — When Fred Baudis' chow dog lost nearly all its sight, an airedale owned by Mrs. Baudis came to the rescue.

The airedale now constantly shepherds the chow, much the same as seeing eye dog does for a human.

DiSalle two seconds or three to the right to reside in the White House.

And obviously, the chatter proceeds, the governor would jump at the chance to go back to the hurly-burly of the Washington scene and escape the "routine" of Columbus life.

GOV. DISALLE himself has thrown a few coals on the fire of speculation. He has said repeatedly since he took his oath in January 1959 that he is not conducting his office with any thought beyond the end of his present term in January 1963—including a bid for re-election.

At the party conclave in Los Angeles, he said he did not want to commit himself to finishing out his gubernatorial term because he wanted to keep himself "mobile."

Nevertheless, many of the governor's friends and supporters discount such statements as the kind of talk a smart and active politician uses to keep himself from being taken for granted.

He repeated the denials last Monday at his first press conference after returning from Los Angeles.

WHICH OF THESE two types of statements can be taken at face value? Both, the governor declares.

"When I said I didn't want to commit myself to finishing out my term," he declared in an interview, "I simply was pointing out the fact that we seldom know what's going to come up."

He has no other thought at the moment than to finish out his term.

"No one seems to want to believe me," he said, looking his interviewer straight in the eye, "but this is the truth: 'I've never discussed with Jack Kennedy any job for myself. That's the way I wanted it.' 'I've told him I want Ohio to be recognized. I don't want anything for myself.'"

THE GOVERNOR scoffs at the idea that he is so attracted to Washington life he would give up his office in Columbus to go to the national capital.

"But I like Toledo and I wanted to go back there. I did go back, and I wouldn't have done it if I'd felt some strong attraction for Washington life."

Besides, the governor asked, where do people get the idea that going to Washington would be an escape from "routine?"

"A cabinet post can be as routine as any other job," he declared. "Most of them certainly have a lot more routine about them than the job of governor of Ohio."

"Frankly, can't think of a cabinet post I'd want."

MIGHT HE BE thinking in terms of a legislative post rather than an administrative one (Sen. Frank J. Lausche's present term expires in January cyy

"No, I'm not thinking beyond my present term. 'I've always believed that the best way to build a political ca-

Ohio Weekend Marred by 19 Fatalities

By The Associated Press

Traffic
Drowning
Miscellaneous
Totals

Tragedies arising from two of the favorite summer weekend pastimes—going for a ride in the car and swimming—again marred a typical Ohio summer weekend.

The final weekend statistics: At least 13 dead in traffic, 4 drownings, 1 boy crushed by an elevator, 1 boy fatally injured in a freak bicycle fall.

The worst of the accidents occurred Sunday along Ohio 301 just east of Lorain. There two young men were killed when their car smashed into a guard rail and then into a tree. The rest of the mishaps which occurred between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday accounted for only single deaths.

Of the drownings, three were youngsters. A 16-year-old was pulled under by the currents of the Scioto River where he was searching for a boat motor; a 12-year-old was swept away in a creek near Georgetown along which his family was picnicking; an 8-year-old who, accompanied by his parents, had gone swimming in a farm pond perished.

Ethel and Jim were selected by the county 4-H awards and recognition committee on the basis of their 4-H records. During the week they will develop an actual farm conservation plan, take field trips to several farms, view demonstrations of drainage, forestry, rain at work, soil and organic matter and wildlife, plus the routine camp program.

The Columbiana County soil conservation district is sponsoring the trip for the two 4-H members, Burger said.

chev has been lied to. That is one possibility. There are others. We can all speculate."

The Soviet Union has charged that the RB47 was on a spy mission over Soviet territory when it was shot down.

The Soviet delegation is pushing a resolution of its own to have the council condemn "continuing provocative actions by the Air Force of the United States" as aggressive and insist that the U. S. government stop such activities.

The Soviet resolution refers by implication to the RB47 flight and to that of the American U2 spy plane that was shot down deep in Soviet territory. It has no chance of being adopted by the council.

Kuznetsov charged "the RB47 was sent into Soviet air space to detect the Soviet Union's system of radar stations and "other military objectives." He said the two surviving crewmen had confessed they were on an intelligence mission.

Lodge in a brief initial reply said the plane was 550 miles off the Soviet coast when it was shot down and that it was never closer than 30 miles to that coast.

Lodge termed Kuznetsov's speech a "sinister fabrication" and a "revolting bit of hypocrisy." He said the plane had been the victim of a "criminal and piratical action" by the Soviet Union.

Body of RB47 Pilot Returned to U.S.

MOSCOW (AP)—With a prayer and a brief military farewell, the U. S. Embassy today sent home the body of the pilot of the RB47 reconnaissance plane the Soviet Union shot down July 1.

A Soviet medical certificate said the flier, Capt. Willard G. Palm of Oak Ridge, Tenn., drowned and that his body was found floating in the Barents Sea. The U. S. charge d'affaires, Edward L. Freers, refused to make the full report public because of "legal and political implications."

The body, in its rough wooden coffin, was formally transferred to American custody at a shabby, back-alley morgue. U. S. representatives did not open the coffin. They were told it also contained Palm's flying suit, his shoes and socks and his identification disc.

The embassy provided a station wagon to take the coffin to the airport, but the Russians said the law required it be carried in a refrigerated truck. Instead it was put on an open, canvas-topped Soviet army truck. Ten Soviet privateers rode on the truck, and a cortege of American Embassy cars followed. The soldiers got off en route at a barracks.

At the airport eight uniformed officers of the embassy military staff draped an American flag over the coffin and carried it to saw horses set up beside the KLM plane flying it to Amsterdam.

At Amsterdam the body will be turned over to the U. S. Air Force, which will fly it back to the United States.

The Soviet Union is holding the two surviving crewmen of the plane for trial as spies. The other three crew members are missing and presumed dead.

comment on published reports that Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. ambassador to the United Nations, is Eisenhower's choice for the vice-presidential nominee.

Eisenhower arranged to watch today's opening session of the convention on television at his Ft. Adams vacation quarters.

He will fly to Chicago Tuesday to address the convention in the evening.

On the President's agenda today was an inspection tour of a Polaris submarine. He also arranged to preside at a meeting of the National Security Council—a session which Hagerty describes as routine without any aspects of emergency.

The submarine the President arranged to inspect this afternoon is the Patrick Henry, a 380-foot sister ship of the George Washington, which fired the first two successful underwater Polaris missile shots last week off Cape Canaveral, Fla.

After the inspection, the President will observe a dummy shoot of the missile.

The President's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, advised newsmen at a news conference to wait for the President's convention speech to get his views on the GOP platform.

Hagerty gave the impression that Eisenhower is not altogether happy about all phases of the platform agreement reached by Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the odds-on choice for the GOP presidential nomination, and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

But Hagerty rejected any suggestion that Nixon's agreement with Rockefeller, who has been critical of administration policy, constituted a "Munich" type of appeasement.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, a Republican right-wing leader, had denounced the Nixon-Rockefeller pact as a "Munich" surrender.

is largely rejecting the new look of liberalism that Rockefeller has hoped to fasten on the GOP. This was true even though many of Rockefeller's ideas have been embraced by Nixon, the party's cinch presidential choice.

The completed GOP platform seemed destined to be far more moderate than the one adopted by Democrats. Republicans argued, however, that their promises had more chance of attainment that what they described as the something-for-everybody pledge of the Democrats.

for Rockefeller, who has said that the present level of outgo ought to be stepped up by 3½ billion dollars to provide an airborne alert, speed missile production and equip ground forces to cope with any brush fire wars that might break out.

The governor complained that all of the "action" words used in the defense statement he wrote and Nixon subscribed to had been diluted by the drafting committee. "This plank does not face up realistically to the dangers that threaten the nation," Rockefeller said.

He said the plank promised only "continuing preservation of retaliatory strength—and I don't think we have that today."

He said in response to questions that he wouldn't go so far as to say that the balance of military power has shifted to the Soviets "but it is shifting."

What did he propose to do about it? Rockefeller said the New York delegation supported his view and it planned to take "a strong, vigorous position" on the matter when the platform is presented to the convention Tuesday.

There was implicit support from Nixon in this proposed protest to the convention.

The vice president said on a CBS television broadcast Sunday night that it has "become necessary to reappraise whatever we have done in the past and to allocate whatever increased expenditures are necessary to keep America's position at the strongest possible level, and that means stronger than any potential aggressor."

A few Ohioans went down to Michigan Avenue to watch an hour-long Republican parade Sunday afternoon, a few others watched from the windows of the headquarters hotel, but most delegates didn't seem to know the parade was in progress.

By other states' standards, the campaign buttons issued to Ohioans are tiny. The biggest Ohio-issued button is 1½ inches across. By contrast, Kentucky supporters of Sen. Thruston B. Morton for vice president are being issued giant campaign buttons measuring a full six inches across.

Gridder Tells Browns To Trade Him

HIRAM, Ohio (AP)—Bob Long, who has indicated he might retire from professional football if he isn't traded to the Los Angeles Rams, failed to show up at the Cleveland Browns' camp, where training opens today.

The Browns traded quarterback Jim Ninowski to the Detroit Lions recently to get Long, a linebacker. Coach Paul Brown said he has no intention of trying to swap the former UCLA star to the Rams. He expressed the hope that Long would report once he liquidates a sporting goods store he has been operating. Long's home is at Anaheim, Calif.

Jim Shofner also failed to make Sunday night's deadline, but the defensive back is expected to complete his National Guard training and report here later this week.

The squad of 47 which checked in Sunday night is one of the smallest ever for the Browns.

However, Coach Brown, ready to start his 15th pro football season, is not worried by the lack of numbers.

"I like to work with a smaller group and that is why we make our cuts as quickly as possible," he said. "That's one advantage of having a quarterback camp. We were able to do some pruning then."

Today's program included a lecture by Brown in the morning, with the afternoon being devoted to the photographers. Regular two-day practice sessions start Tuesday.

Larry Stephens, a rookie from Texas, is the largest of the newcomers to camp. He towers 6-feet-4 and tips the scales at 269 pounds. Brown plans to start him out as a defensive tackle.

Another newcomer is Bobby Bobby Franklin, a quarterback from Mississippi, who will make a bid as a safety man. He soon will be on his way to the College All-Star camp.

Dick Schaffrath, former Ohio State captain, has been moved into the tackle competition although he worked at center during one of the sessions at the quarterback camp.

Initial plans call for Bobby Mitchell, who has gained eight pounds since last season, to start out as a running back, but he may be moved later to flanker.

WINNING WAYS
University Park, Pa. — (NEA) Penn State has had a winning football season for 21 consecutive years.

The White Sox came into town in second place and proceeded to win three straight from New York. One more defeat and the proud Yanks would have been three games back.

Desperate for pitching after the failures of Bob Turley, Whitey Ford and Jim Coates, the Yankees called on Grba. He came through with the first complete game of his brief major league career and his second victory over the White Sox 8-2. As a result the White Sox' lead was cut to one game. Grba has a total of four victories over two seasons in the majors and three of them have been at the expense of Chicago.

Baltimore Sneaks Into Third
Baltimore sneaked into third place, three games back, by edging Detroit 2-1 in 11 innings on Jackie Brandt's fourth hit of the day. Boston dropped Cleveland into fourth place by taking two from the Indians who spent most of the day jawing with the umpires. The scores were 10-6 and 7-6.

Washington came within one error of a major league record by making five errors in the seventh inning while losing the first game to Kansas City 6-3. The Senators snapped back 10-2 behind Camilo Pascual.

The Yankee-White Sox double drew the season's largest Yankee Stadium crowd, 60,002. The fans saw Billy Pierce whip the Yanks in the first, with late inning relief help from Turk Lown and Frank Baumann as the Sox pounded Yank pitchers for 16 hits, including Roy Sievers' 12th homer.

Piersall Hides Behind Pole
Bill Monbouquette and Mike Fornieles, working in relief of Frank Sullivan, were the Boston winners. Ted Williams beat out a bunt. Jimmy Piersall, fined $100 and called on the carpet for Saturday's argument, hid behind the flag-pole in center field during one of the many arguments between Indians and ump. Gary Bell and Jack Harshman were the Cleveland losers.

Brandt's game-winning hit gave Baltimore third place. Chuck Estrada turned in a five-hit performance against the Tigers for his 10th victory.

In that wild inning at Washington, shortstop Jose Valdivielso made three errors. Second baseman Bill Gardner and right fielder Dan Dobbek each made one.

Italian Club Upsets Carl's Tavern, 5-1

Italian Club kept its hopes alive for making the Class A playoff this year by upsetting Carl's Tavern, 5-1, Saturday night at Kelley field.

Lincoln Machine stayed in contention by edging Purity Dairy, 2-1, Marks Landing, which like Purity Dairy is already assured of one of the four playoff berths, smashed Mile Branch Grange, 11-5.

In the fourth game scheduled Saturday, H. K. Porter dropped its 16th straight contest of the season when it forfeited to Eagles.

THIS LEAVES Lincoln Machine, Carl's Tavern and Italian Club to fight it out for the two remaining playoff spots in Class A. Italian Club has the uphill climb since it has dropped seven games while the other two have lost only six.

Italian Club and Lincoln Machine each have one regular season game remaining. Carl's has three games to go and one of those is against league - leading Marks Landing.

Wayne Russell tossed a six-hitter and Bill Pauline slugged out a home run to feature Italian Club's 5-1 win over Carl's on Saturday.

JUDGE GUILER gave Purity Dairy just three hits in pitching his club to a 2-1 win over Purity Dairy in a well played fray which went nine innings. Lincoln collected just seven hits off loser John Moulton who dropped his first game of the season. Successive singles by

Beall Hits 2 Homers, Hunter Also Connects

A heads up Salem Merchants baseball team used the long ball and some snappy fielding to notch a 6-3 County-City League victory over Chippewa, Pa., Sunday at Centennial Park.

Dick Beall smashed in four runs with a pair of homers and Dave Hunter sent home the other two, also on a round tripper. All three Chippewa runs also scored on a pair of homers.

After Chippewa took a 1-0 lead on Masotti's homer in the first inning off Moe Meissner, Beall knotted the count with his first blast, leading off the second inning. An infield error and a homer by Walton put Chippewa back on top 3-1 in the fourth.

WAYNE WALTERS led off the sixth for Salem with a single. Tony Everett sacrificed, Jeff Roberts was safe on a fielder's choice and then Beall unloaded a three-run homer putting the locals on top 4-3.

Salem added two insurance markers in the seventh when Lynn Barnett led off with a single and Hunter belted a ball over the hill in right field and raced all the way home while the outfielders looked for the ball in the weeds.

Hunter also saved one run and possibly two in the fourth inning when he made a diving catch at shortstop with two men on base and two outs.

HUNTER and Walters collected three hits apiece for Salem. Walton had a homer and triple to feature for the losers.

Meissner pitched a steady game for Salem, giving up eight hits while striking out three and walking one. He also hit a batter.

The Merchants now have an 8-6 season record. They will be on the road Tuesday night to play the league-leading East Liverpool Colts. On Wednesday, Salem travels to Lawrenceville, Pa.

Piersall In Serious Trouble With Teammates and League

BOSTON (AP)—The Cleveland Indians are on the warpath, and the object of their ire is teammate Jimmy Piersall, the excitable center fielder.

Piersall stayed behind in Boston today for an appearance before American League President Joe Cronin while the rest of the squad packed their war clubs and set off for New York, where they open a four-game series against the Yankees Tuesday.

Team members said they may send a committee to General Manager Frank Lane to demand that he take action to curb Piersall's antics.

One irate player told a reporter the team is on the verge of a revolt, adding that "Lane has got to do something or the entire team will fall apart."

A veteran Tribesman said the Indians "still have a good chance to win the pennant, but not if Piersall remains unchecked. We got a lot of rough decisions from umpires in the Boston series. They lean over backward when Piersall is concerned but take it out on the rest of the players."

Members of the team said they thought the fines that have been levied on Piersall will have little effect.

Cronin called Piersall on the carpet to explain his antics and umpire-baiting tactics.

Piersall, who was fined $100 by Cronin for his actions in Saturday's game with Boston, faces possible drastic disciplinary action. Cronin has the authority to suspend him indefinitely.

"They all think I'm nuts," Piersall said. "I'm just high strung."

Cronin, in an unusual move, told Piersall to bring his wife, Mary, to the session. But on that

"That's utterly ridiculous," he snorted. "I'm not going to take her. She's pregnant and not feeling well. She's upset about this whole thing and I'm just not going to do it."

She is regarded by close friends of the family as a steady, soothing influence on Piersall, who once spent time in the violent room of a suburban Boston hospital.

The fine was levied for actions during a violent argument between Piersall and Umpire Ed Hurley in Saturday's game.

Piersall escaped a banishment Sunday, but had a part in the proceedings, alternately jeering and chatting with fans, haranguing umpires and squatting cross-legged behind the flagpole in center field.

Hurley, the object of some of Piersall's taunts, was disgusted with the whole affair.

"I feel like quitting," the umpire said. "They pay that guy $32,500 a year. And how much do I get for taking his abuse?"

And a teammate said: "They talk about the $350 he (Piersall) has paid in fines this season. That's a big joke. He will make far more than that making personal appearances. But we aren't going to make any extra money unless we win the pennant."

LEGION GAME POSTPONED
The 10th District American Legion League game scheduled for Centennial Park Sunday between the Steubenville was postponed at the request of the Steubenville team which had another commitment.

People You Should Know .. Mrs. G. R. Deming

By VIRGINIA HURRAY

Mrs. G. R. Deming has, over a period of years, traveled to countries on every continent of the globe.

But a few days ago as she sat with friends on her front porch and looked out onto one of the lovely tree-shaded lawns which characterize S. Lincoln Ave., she announced: "I'm through traveling. Actually, it takes too much effort!"

Asked to talk about her travels, she protests, declaring she is absolutely not good at describing things.

NEVERTHELESS her accounts yield vivid glimpses of: the Fiji Islands, "the most sophisticated place imaginable, with modern hotels and worldly people, though the islanders still dance with long spears;" Israel, a nation she and her husband first visited 10 years ago and to which Mrs. Deming returned in 1958, a nation whose people are markedly more happy now than when Mrs. Deming first saw them; and Bangkok, locale of the musicale "The King and I." She tells about the smell of the oreint—"compounded of the aroma of flowers, sandalwood, humans and dried bananas."

MRS. DEMING, widow of one of Salem's leading industrialists who was the grandson of the Deming Co. founder, was written up in a New Zealand newspaper not long ago for a reason that would probably amaze many of her friends.

Here is the story. In 1904, when she was a teenager, her father took her to the famous St. Louis Fair. Among fascinating exhibitions there were small villages of natives from other lands. Besides others set up on the fairgrounds was a settlement of Maori, native Polynesians from New Zealand.

The young girl and her father viewed the tall, scantily clad people and then proceeded to take in other sights of the fair. But everywhere they went after the Maori village, it was apparent that the native chief was following them. One day he approached the father, introduced himself and solemnly declared he wanted to buy the girl. Mrs. Deming recalls that the chief offered no good reason for desiring to purchase her, other than that he said he liked plump girls! "I remember being afraid my father was going to accept the lucrative offer," she laughs.

Last year her travels took her to New Zealand. She happened to mention the incident of the fair to the cruise director, who retold it to a New Zealand newsman, who lost no time arranging an interview with the SS Kungsholm passenger from Salem.

MRS. DEMING had made tentative plans to go to Norway, Sweden and Denmark this summer, and to see London again. "London is really the one European city I would most like to re-visit, because the people speak our language, because of the wonderful theaters there, because my husband's mother was from England, and because I have many friends there."

But she reiterates that she is simply tired of traveling, "dressing aboard ship each night for dinner and all."

However, Mrs. Rolland Webber, a friend who chatted with Mrs. Deming on the porch, comments: "Don't bet that she won't go abroad again!"

Considering that Mrs. Deming calls Hong Kong "the love of my life," and Vienna "the grandest place in the world for good food," we're not making any such wagers!

STELLA NOW A PRODUCER

NON-FICTION

"The Story of Jewelry" by Marcus Baerwals and Tom Mahoney. A brief history of the most popular of the precious stones, basic information about the structure of the various gem stones.

"Of Nature, Time and Teale" by Edward H. Dodd, Jr. Admirers of Teale's many books on nature will welcome this brief discussion of him. Contains a section of fine photographs, many of them by Teale himself.

"Here's Hawaii" by Bob Krauss. This is almost anything except a conventional guidebook. Bob Krauss has been a newspaper columnist in Hawaii for some years and he gives here gay reminiscences of many aspects of island life.

"The Good Years" by Walter Lord. The author of "Day of Infamy" and "A Night to Remember" brings his considerable talent to a presentation of the years from 1900 to the beginning of World War I. Before writing this book he talked to as many people as he could find all over the country who had participated in the events of those times.

"The Land That Isn't There" by Leonard Wibberly. Mr. Wibberly takes Kevin, aged 9, and Patricia, 7, back to Ireland. Their adventures there were what one might expect of the man who wrote "The Mouse That Roared."

"The Citizen Volunteer" by Nathan E. Cohen. What the role of the volunteer has been in American growth, why individuals should do volunteer work, also specific information in various volunteer fields. The book also contains a good bibliography of books on the subject and a directory of volunteer bureaus.

"The World of Feeling" by J. D. Carthy. Interestingly but simply written, anyone can learn a lot more about the various senses in this little book. The sense of balance is considered as one in addition to the five senses we ordinarily name. Some mention is made of the senses which animals and insects have but humans do not.

"Kings and Camels" by Grant C. Butler. Saudi Arabia interpreted by a man who respects all types of people. He explains the religion of the Arabs, he describes the desert dwellers and the city dwellers.

"How to Have Model Beauty, Poise and Personality" by John Robert Powers. Mr. Powers doesn't make it sound easy, but the magic of his name in the modeling field should entice anyone to try to live up to at least some of the standards he sets.

"Music and Worship in the Church" by Austin C. Lovelace and William C. Rice. This is one of the most complete discussions available on this subject. It provides a practical understanding of the use of music in all phases of church life. A glossary and bibliography are additional helpful features.

GUNFIRE KILLS 1

CLEVELAND (AP)—A woman was killed and two men were wounded in gunfire that erupted after vice squad members visited an east side residence checking on illegal sale of alcohol, police reported.

Dead was Mrs. Klenonia Taylor, 42. Her former husband, Cicero Scott, 50, and 43-year-old David Hudson had bullet wounds in their legs. Police said the argument started when Mrs. Taylor and Scott criticized Hudson for his handling of the vice squad members in their visit Sunday. Hudson was being held at Cleveland Metropolitan Hospital's prison ward.

Drive Safely In Rural Areas

1. Slow down when you reach gravel or dirt roads.

2. Stay on right side of road on curves.

3. Expect any hazard: Livestock, narrow bridges, etc. Obey all signs.

CAUTION—The National Safety Council warns that driving on rural roads differs so much from turnpike and urban motoring that it's a bit like exploring another realm. Anything from a chicken to a chuckhole, from a cow to a culvert can loom at any moment—and usually does. It is a timely warning since many city motorists, unaccustomed to such roads, will be cruising them during vacations.
